The following are the Transdisciplinary Prevention Research Centers (TPRC) currently part of the NNP. These abstracts are derived from the new NIH RePORTER query system. More information is available through RePORTER at http://projectreporter.nih.gov/reporter.cfm and through the Principal Investigator.

CDART - Center for Drug Abuse Research Translation Michael T. Bardo, Ph.D.

The CDART, University of Kentucky, is distinguished by thematic integration around the construct of nov

Center for Drug Abuse Prevention in the Child

John B. Reid, Ph.D.

The Center will continue Chief divinous teer chaec Cladic Top R. Child sy et learnes, tidal by authors expected text to part year expected to the part of the part

A Transdisciplinary Center Focused on Rural African American Families Gene H. Brody, Ph.D.

The overall aim of this CAfeicaenAlemerficExcelletoles (2000 F) 2s26) carteculred issue au control to be built to prostoment on its control of the control o